

The Loch Inn Website Overview

Home Page:

On my home page the extra features I have added are: I have a large “hero” image as my greeting for the guests. I have also implemented a video of the hotel that is embedded into the page for the users to get a better feel of our hotel’s experience. I have used images to show what facilities the hotel has to offer for the guests.

Reservation Page:

For the reservation page I have added an embedded Google Map that shows the location of the hotel to the users so they can find it easily. It also has 2 forms, one is for making reservations and the other is used to contact the hotel for more information.

Corporate Bookings Page:

I have added a special form for business bookings that allows them to specify the number of people attending and whether they want pick-up services or a conference room. I have also implemented a reset button for the form in order to clear the form easily if the user makes a mistake when filling it in.

Footer:

I have added interactive social media links that allow the users to easily get in touch via their favourite social media. The footer also contains link for a phone number and email that will automatically begin a phone call or start an email. Quick links have also been added for a more efficient navigation for the user. Finally I have added a copyright logo and a last updated section for the footer.

Warnings:

I experienced a warning when validating my html as I had chosen to use the “date” input type, however this type is not supported on all older browsers but it does work on most modern ones so I decided to keep this feature in as a compromise. I also had an Article and section warning that warned I needed a h2 or below heading however I decided that it would make my code simpler and more readable to not include this in my article.
